How to earn more?

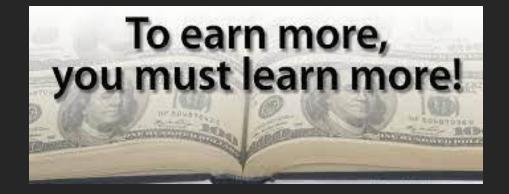

Let's think seriously about how much we would like to earn per month in five years.

It then explains that there are two types of people when it comes to setting goals - those who evaluate their chances based on their current position and find it impossible to achieve big goals, and those who look at successful people and gain confidence from them.

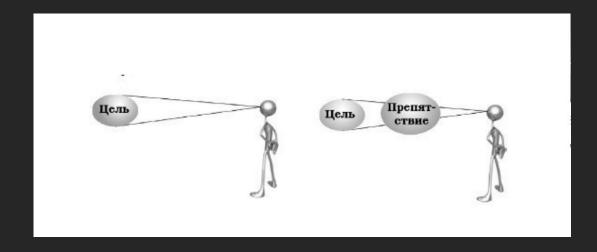

Successful people have more opportunities, work colleagues, partners, and self-confidence, which help them achieve significant results.

One's accessibility to goals is determined by their level of personality development, and education expands the field of view and increases one's goals.

Setting big goals is essential because it allows one to see their target despite obstacles, making it easier to navigate and evaluate.

We should double our desired income goal, as it will help us to see both the goal and obstacles on the way, making it more achievable if we believe in ourselves and our strengths.
